from the St. Louis Glob's Democrat.

The case with which a Jim the Penman of real life can be unmasked by the aid of the flashlight of an up-to-date handwriting expert is startling in its simplicity. After a lifetime passed in studying the abortive attempts of forgers, anonymous letter writers, and others depend upon their supressed cleverness with the pen to make a dishonest dollar, one of the best known of the pen experts can only liken the fancied security of them individuals to that of the ostrich that buries his head in the sand and imagines that he is invisible to the eyes of his pursuers.

"For the benefit of the crooked fra ternity." said this expert, Mr. Daniel T. Ames, "I would state that it is impossible for any orm to disguise his handwriting so that the attem pt cannot be detected. Before me at the crees at mo-ment are the papers in a case that will come before the courts in a few weeks and will doubtless cause a sensation. The writer of a secies of letters has attempted to disguise his hand that the letters might appear to have come from several different people. In all there are unerring indications that they were written by one and the same person. For in-stance, the habits of the man show in the manner of beginning the lines. In each case they begun close to the edge of the paper, this evidently being one of the man's peculiarities. Then the conjunction 'and' is in each instance made with the sign '&.' Even where he has gone to the trouble of printing the letter so that he may be sure that the writing is effectually disguised, the writer forgets to disguise this one word, and the signs are so much alike that there is no mistaking them. It would almost seem as if nature had made the eleverest criminel weak in some point or other in order that his crookedness might be fastened upon him. This man has disguised his handwriting, but

AIR MOTORS FOR STREET CARS. They Will Be Tested Here Next Month-

Many Advantages Claimed. President Vreeland of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company said yesterday that he expected to make a test of the compressed air motors some time between July 1 and 10. Some of the cars sent to Worcester have been returned equipped for the experiment, but the ma-chinery for charging the motors is not quite ready. Mr. Vreeland said that if the motor was found to be satisfactory it would enable the company to greatly improve the service over the roads now operated by horse power, about the roads now operated by horse power, about 150 miles in all.

He explained that it would make the system elastic, for each car carrying its ewn motive power, its route would not be subject to the limitations that govern other systems. Horses can do only so much work, and must be fed, rested, and stabled in fixed localities and at intervals more or less frequent. It would be possible to take the Amsterdam and Sixth avenue cars, now stopping at Canal and at Vesey streets, attraight down to the Battery by running between the cable cars on Broadway below those streets, and so with the Fourth avenue cars below the Post Office. On the Belt Line a diversity of routes could be made, and more convenient service given in that way. He said that he did not think a change of traction power would be made for a long time on the lines already equipped with the cable.

There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condi-tion of the system, which the pleasant tion of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. Ever since the demoralization in the stock market last December caused by the President's message relative to the Venezuelan boundary dispute, Wall street has been abnormally sensitive to every suggestion or possibil-ity of foreign complications. That sensitiveness was entirely responsible for the course of prices to-day, for the Street was wrought up to a high degree of nervousness by reports that the Administration may decide to intervene in the Cuban situation. The apprehension of the speculative community was intensified by foreign advices that Spain had negotiated an additional loan for the purpose of increasing its naval force. As the street was apparently bent upon making a "Blue Monday" of it, the professional traders in stocks were not content with dilating upon the possibility of a collision between the United States and Spain, but suddenly became filled with fears that the Democratic National Convention may make a declaration in favor of free silver and elect its candidate upon that basis. In brief, nearly every one having a speculative interest in the stock market seemed to come to the conclusion that the worst that may happen is practically a certainty. In consequence, speculative accounts were liquidated without much regard to prices, and the final result was a materially lower level for all stocks that received noteworthy attention.

The total transactions were fairly large, but more than half of them were in three stocks, namely, Sugar Refining, St. Paul, and Louis-ville and Nashville. The greatest net decline was that of 31 g cent, in the first named, which was to an extent the result of a decline of 3-16 of a cent a pound in the price of the standard grades of refined sugar. Although London prices for American securities were lower at the start, foreign arbitrage houses bought a few stocks at the decline that took place later in the day. The withdrawal of $750,000 gold from the Sub-Treasury for shipment to Europe to-morrow, and of $100,000 for shipment to Canada, was not without effect upon the temper of the speculative community. While liquidation was the preëminent feature of the market, it is to be noted that the bulk of it was easily recognizable as for speculative account. The closing was feverish and unsettled, at about the lowest
